MATERIALS FOR A GENEALOGY OF THE SPARHAWK FAMILY IN NEW ENGLAND.

644 Elizabeth Sparhawk, daughter of Hon. Samuel and Elizabeth (McKinstry) Sparhawk, married Edward Winslow, Esq., son of Isaac and Margaret (Blanchard) Winslow, Sept. 25, 1847. (He was a grandson of the Isaac Winslow, whose first wife was Elizabeth Sparhawk.) He died in Newton Centre, Mass., in 1883 (May 26). After his decease his widow continued to reside in Newton Centre. Her last days were passed with her nieces in the same town (children of Dr. Thomas Sparhawk) where on April 21, 1891, she passed away. The following beautiful account of her life appeared in "The Transcript" of Boston and as it is most accurate and comprehensive, we quote it in full as follows:

"It is not often that the circle of the years unite the vivacity of youth, the keen enjoyment of beauty in nature and the world, a zest in the simple things of daily life, with mature thought and a deep spiritual life. But these gifts met in her. Her transition from gay to grave was like that from the sunshine to the shadows of a summer's day, always with the consciousness of brightness overhead. She was full of wit, and her unfailing sense of humor made her full of bright and amusing anecdotes. Stories of old New England days and customs were as fresh in her mind as when she first knew them, while any droll occurrence of to-day, or the ludicrous side of any scene, presented itself to her invariably and was reproduced with a faithfulness that made it irresistible.

But it was not these traits that made her beloved and honored by those who knew her. Her clear and quick understanding, her loyalty to those whom she loved, her unswerving fidelity to whatever she believed right—the sense of strength in her very presence—these were the foundations of the attractiveness, enhanced by gifts and graces and by the simplicity of perfect unconsciousness. No one knowing the attachment from childhood between herself and her husband's sister could hold the friendship of women a myth. In the long years they spent together, until the recent death of the latter, they read and studied many things, historic stories, biographies, travels and especially those relating to Bible lands and connected with sacred history; and a few years ago the two took up the study of Hebrew that they might read at least passages in the Bible in the original. Yet so full was she of the best of youth and brightness of spirit that a good child's book, even of fairy stories, always interested her.

She was born at Portsmouth, N. H., a descendant of the colonial family there and of John Sparhawk, the early minister of the old church of Salem, Mass. From him and from other ancestors no less earnest may have come the strength and fulness of her faith—as from a line of women of unusual energy and power in a time in this country when these qualities were not uncommon, there came her independence, her staying qualities, her unconsciousness of self, and that bright cheerfulness which made the day seem sunnier, when she entered into it. And this sunshine was in her faith also; whatever came to her was sent; her whole life in all its details was an illustration of the old hymn—

"What God doth it is all well done;
His will upright abiding.
Since He has traced my course begun,
I will go on confiding."

In her gayety was the charm not only of real wit, but of a light-heartedness with the deepest foundations; and in her very presence there came to one a new revelation of the strength and beauty of faith —a wonder if, in this age of doubt, a trust so absolute did not have its rich reward even in the eyes of men. For strength and peace, courage and power, all were hers, all made life a blessing to others, and now make her memory a plea for living near to heaven."

The sketch was written by her niece Miss Frances Campbell Sparhawk, who has achieved wide reputation as a writer of short stories. Chief among them may be mentioned "Elizabeth," published in "The New England Magazine." Also "A Lazy Man's Work, "Little Polly Blatchley," "A Chronicle of Conquest" and other volumes. Miss Sparhawk has also a deep interest in work among the Indians.

656 Mary Pepperrell Sparhawk Jarvis, daughter of Consul William and Mary P. (Sparhawk) Jarvis, married Sept. 9, 1829, Col. Hampden Cutts of Portsmouth, N. H., son of Edward and Mary (Carter) Cutts. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. Converse, at Weathersfield, Vt. They lived for three years in Portsmouth, N. H., and later in 1833 removed to Hartland, Vt., in the northern portion of that township.

964 Edward Holyoke, b. May 29, 1831; m. A. Sherwood, Jan. 10, 1855; d. Oct. 11, 1887.
965 Elizabeth Bartlett Jarvis, b. Nov., 1833; d. April, 1834.
966 Anna Holyoke, b. June 17, 1835; m. A. T. Howard, Aug. 24, 1861; d. June 28, 1889.
967 Elizabeth Bartlett, b. April 12, 1837; m. A. R. Bullard, M.D., April 27, 1861; d. Feb., 1864; s. p.
968 Wm. Jarvis, b. June 30, 1839; d. April, 1853.

972 Harriet Louise, b. Feb. 1, 1851; m. U. A. Budd, Jan. 8, 1879.

Colonel Cutts graduated from Harvard College in 1823, and studied law with Hon. Jeremiah Mason. After his removal to Vermont he practised his profession for many years.

During that time he was Judge of the Probate Court; four years a member of the Vermont legislature; three years senator, and until his death in 1875 was Vice President, for Vermont, of the New England Historical Genealogical Society. He delivered a good many addresses before various organizations, and contributed to the press. He left an unpublished novel in manuscript form entitled "Louisbourg," which as the title suggests had its origin in a study of that historic event. Mrs. Cutts survived her husband only four years, dying very suddenly in April, 1879. She had been a woman of remarkable energy, and uprightness of character as well as of warm and benevolent heart. At the time of the purchase of "Mount Vernon" by the ladies of the Union she was Vice Regent for Vermont, and labored for this patriotic cause with her characteristic zeal and enthusiasm. After the death of her father she wrote a volume entitled "The Life and Times of Wm. Jarvis," Riverside Press. An edition of one thousand copies was published of this work, and copies of it are to be seen in the principal historical libraries.

657 Elizabeth Bartlett Jarvis married David Everett Wheeler, Esq., second son of John B. Wheeler, Esq., of Orford, N. H., Feb. 14, 1833. They resided in New York City, where Mr. Wheeler was an eminent lawyer, having graduated from Dartmouth College in 1827, and spending a year at the Law School in Cambridge, Mass. In 1844 he was a member of the Assembly of New York and a member of the Board of Education of the city. He continued to reside there until his death.

1045 Rebecca Russell, b. ———.
1046 Robert Traill Spence, b. ———; m. Cath. B. Myers, Sept. 12, 1886; d. March, 1887.

Mrs. M. D. Lowell died in 1890. Her husband, Rev. Rob't T. S. Lowell, was a graduate of Harvard in the class of 1833, and, after acquiring a medical education, became a clergyman in the Episcopal Church. He was established in 1846 and 1847 in Newfoundland. It was at that time he gathered the materials for his novel entitled "The New Priest of Conception Bay." This was issued in 1858, and again in 1863 was reissued, with illustrations by Darley. In 1860 he published a volume of poems entitled "Fresh hearts that failed three thousand years ago." From 1869 to 1873 he was head master of St. Mark's School at Southboro, Mass. Afterwards he was Professor of Latin in Union College. These are his chief works and positions, although he did very much, and was very highly esteemed as a writer and teacher. His death occurred on the twelfth of September, 1891, a month after the death of his brother James Russell Lowell.

716 James Russell Lowell married Maria White.

1047 Blanche, b. ———; d. y.

1050 Walter, b. ———; d. young, at Rome.

After Mrs. Lowell's death, her husband married Miss Dunlap who died some years later. The wives of this eminent man were both singularly fitted for his companions. Indeed his first wife was gifted as a writer of beautiful poems. Her husband graduated from Harvard in 1838, and his whole life in detail has become so much the property of the world at large that it is unnecessary to add anything to what has been written. His poems and prose works will live in the memory of all who read them; few are born to fill such eminent positions. Statesman, diplomat, litterateur, poet, essayist, critic and professor! All these he filled and when his earthly career was ended in August, 1891, of none could it be more truly said the whole world mourned his loss.

718 James Russell Dutton, son of Warren and Elizabeth Cutts (Lowell) Dutton, married Sarah Ellen Hooper and changed his name to James Dutton Russell.

1051 Ellen Hooper, b. ——; m. Geo. M. Barnard.
1052 Elizabeth Lowell, b. ——; m. H. F. Dalton.

1094 John Eliot Bowen, son of Henry C. and Lucy M. (Tappan) Bowen, was graduated from Yale College in 1881. He then devoted two years to travel and study in Europe, and the East. On his return he took a position in the editorial office of "The Independent." During this time he also pursued a post-graduate course at Columbia College in history and political economy, and in 1886, received from that institution the degree of doctor of philosophy. He published many original poems and stories which were written in a clear, strong style, and won many commendations. His earthly career was terminated on the 3rd of Jan., 1890. The address at his funeral services, delivered by Rev. R. S. Storrs, D.D., formed one of the impressive parts of the occasion. This was afterward printed in full, as was also a longer sketch of Dr. Bowen's life than can be given here.[1]

1254 William Lowell Putnam, son of George and Harriet (Lowell) Putnam, married Elizabeth Lowell, June 9, 1888.

1277 George, b. June 4, 1889.

Since the commencement of this genealogy many additional facts have been received which have made it much larger than originally expected while by no means making it as complete as most family records. As the attempt was only to gather such records as were to be had without a prolonged research it will at once be seen that the purpose of the compiler has been fully met. It is proper to note that Mr. Henry Fitz Gilbert Waters has discovered recently that the first wife of Nathaniel Sparhawk, the emigrant, was Mary Ainger, of Dedham, Essex Co., England.

Dorothy Avery (29) was recorded as probably dying unmarried. The following record of her family has been received since that part of the sketch appeared.

Dorothy Avery married Samuel Angier of Cambridge, Mass., in 1712.

1278 Dorothy, b. Oct. 16, 1713; m. Rev. Gad Hitchcock, D.D., Dec. 22, 1748; d. Aug. 6, 1792.
1279 Hannah, b. Sept. 15, 1715-16; m. Rev. Ebenezer Gay of Suffield, July 17, 1742.
1280 Sybil, b. ——; m. Daniel Farnham of Newbury, July 11, 1749.
1281 Patience, b. Jan. 9, 1721-2; d. young.

Samuel Angier died Mar. 6, 1721, aged thirty-four years, six months. Mrs. Dorothy (Avery) Angier died Sept. 14, 1752.

1278 Dorothy Angier, daughter of Samuel and Dorothy (Avery) Angier, married Rev. Gad Hitchcock, LL.D., Dec. 22, 1748.

1282 Gad (M.D.), b. Nov. 2, 1749; m. Miss S. Bailey.

1282 Gad Hitchcock, M.D., married Miss S. Bailey, daughter of Col. John Bailey. They had a large family, of whom 1283 Catherine, b. ——; m. Dr. Calvin Tilden.

1283 Catherine Hitchcock married Dr. Calvin Tilden. Had, among others:

1284 Junius, b. ——; m. ——.
1285 Kate H., b. ——; m. E. M. Avery.

1284 Junius Tilden married ——, ——.

The thanks of the compiler are due to a greater number than can well be enumerated in this brief space. Special acknowledgments are due to Mrs. Mary Lowell Putnam; Messrs. Charles W. and John Sparhawk; Mr. Edward E. Sparhawk; Misses Lucy, Jennie and Frances C. Sparhawk; Edward A. Bowen, Esq., and Mrs. Hannah D. Hutchings, for valuable contributions.

CECIL HAMPDEN CUTTS HOWARD.

THE GOOD PHYSICIAN.

WRITTEN IN MEMORY OF DR. THOMAS SPARHAWK.

BY MISS MARGARET WINSLOW.

I.

I see him on his rounds
Within the village bounds,
His patient horse at every humble door
Where crammed in stifling dens,
The foul, dark factory pens,
Lie, loathed by dainty sense, the suffering poor.

II.

Not loathed by that pure love,
Warm from the light above
Hastening to spend for them his heavenly gift;
Like one who closely trod
The foot-prints of his God—
Body and soul alike, from death to lift.

III.

I see him gently raise,
The infant, frail of days,
In manly arms, as tender as his heart;
I see the mother laid
On soft couch, freshly made
By hands well used to act a woman's part.

IV.

I see the aged soothed
The young head softly smoothed;
The horny hand grasped brotherly and warm;
I see the loved home hearth,
The hospitable mirth
Left night by night, to breast the wintry storm.

V.

Far over hill and plain,
Through darkness, mist and rain,
Through biting cold and clouds of drifting snow;
Oft for no other mead
Than His who sent the need
Faithful and fearless still, I see him go.

VI.

I see him pause at last;
That life-long service past,
A soldier in his duty stricken down;
Yet beams the noble face,
Serene in passive grace,
The hoary hair of righteousness its crown.

VII.

I see, in last repose,
That smile, where softly glows
The fair, bright sunshine, stooping to embrace,
Like blessings long since stored
In hearts now round him poured
From lowliest homes—that pure and saint-like face.

VIII.

I see the reverent throng,
The aged and the young,
The rich, the poor, who press around his bier;
I mark the heaving breast,
The low sob half suppressed,
The manly grief, and woman's tender tear.

IX.

And with the eye of faith,
His trust in that which saith
"Come, blessed of my Father, who have given
Food to my hungering poor,
Health to my sick and sore"
I see a king within the courts of heaven.

X.

I see the crown of light!
I know his garment bright!
I touch his golden sceptre of command;
But whence yon garland green,
With leaves of silvery sheen
And fragrant breath, that blooms within his hand?

XI.

O prize! than robe or crown
Or sceptre of renown
More blessed of the Father and the Son—
The leaves of heavenly life,
To heal the nation's strife,
Not for himself, but myriads, he hath won.

AN ACCOUNT OF THE FIRST CENTENNIAL OF THE SETTLEMENT OF SALEM.

Boston, December 14, 1883.

HENRY WHEATLAND, M.D.,

PRESIDENT OF THE ESSEX INSTITUTE:

DEAR SIR: I send you herewith an account of the celebration which took place at Salem, on the completion of the first century of its settlement. It is found in "The New England Weekly Journal," August 18, 1729, and gives some interesting facts connected with the occasion. Was there any centennial celebration in Plymouth before this one? If not, this was the earliest in New England.

Very truly yours,

SAMUEL A. GREEN.

Salem, August 12.

On Wednesday the 6th of this Instant, was celebrated here, the 1st CENTURY LECTURE in the Meeting House of the 1st Church here, in Commemoration of the Good Hand of GOD in founding that Church on August 6, 1629, just 100 Years since, enlarging and making Her the Mother of several others and Preserving and Blessing Her to this Day. She was the 1st CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH that was compleatly form'd and Organiz'd in the whole AMERICAN CONTINENT; which was on the Day abovemention'd; when the Rev. Mr. HIGGINSON was Ordained their Teacher and the Rev. Mr. SKELTON their Pastor &c: Governour BRADFORD and others, departed from the Church of PLIMOUTH at their Invitation, coming into the Assembly in the Time of the Solemnity, (having been hindred by contrary Winds) gave them the Right Hand of Fellowship, wishing all Prosperity and a Blessed Success to such Good Beginnings. The CENTRY LECTURE Began with Singing Psal. CXXII. The Rev. Mr. Barnard of Marblehead then Prayed. We then Sang Psal. CVII. 1–8. The Rev. Mr. Fisk then Preach'd a very agreable Sermon, from Psal. LXXVIII. 1–7, which is earnestly desir'd and hop'd to be Printed. We then Sang Psal. XLIV, 1, 2, 6, 7. The Rev. Mr. Prescot then Prayed. We then Sang Psal. C 1st Meter, and the Rev. Mr. Fisk Pronounc'd the Blessing. There were Thirteen Ministers present, and a considerable confluence of People both from this place and the Towns about.

N. B. Mr. Morton seems to speak of 30 Persons in the 1st Foundation: But Capt. Johnson says there were but 7.

Margaret Casno of Lawful Age testifieth & saith that in part of the Time when there was so much talk of Witchcraft in this Country and several persons suffered therefor being according to the best of this Deponents Remembrance about forty five years agone this Deponent then being about Eighteen years of age lived with Margaret Pastre in the house and Family of m^{r}. George Hollard in Boston and at that time m^{r} Philip English of Salem & his wife being under suspicion for the aforesaid Crime she was then taken up and put into Boston Goal and he the said m^{r}. Philip English came to Boston and requested the aforesaid m^{r}. George Hollard to take him into his house who accordingly did & maintained him there secretly for some time and the s^{d} Hollards House being searched for the s^{d} English he was hid behind a Bag with dirty cloaths by which means he Escaped then being taken and afterwards when he was put into prison for Witchcraft and his Estate and Effects thereupon seized s^{d} m^{r} Hollard supported m^{r} English & his wife in Goal and this Deponent often and frequently carryed victuals and provisions from s^{d} m^{r} Hollards house & by his Orders deliv^{d} the same to the s^{d} English & his wife in prison, and the said Englishes Family wanting subsistance when bro't up to Boston his Effects being seized this Deponent well remembers that m^{rs} Mary Eglish Daughter to s^{d} Philip English lived at said m^{r} George Hollards and was by him maintained and supported for a considerable time (this Depon^{t} is not certain how long.) But said m^{r} Hollard maintained and supported the said Mary English for a considerable time after the rest of said Englishes Family were gone from thence.
